“ Mrs. McBride was one of the most loving, caring, giving persons I've ever known. No matter a person's age, color, or economic status, Mrs. McBride would advocate for that person's needs. She was a wonderful wife and mother. She was a loyal friend. I will always appreciate and remember how after every potluck dinner, Mrs. McBride would make sure every family left with plenty of left over food for the next day's meal. I will really miss Mrs. McBride and will try to follow her great example as a way to honor her. Sincerely, Sherry Vinson, MD

“ Mrs. McBride was one of the most loving, caring, giving, unselfish people I've ever known. She advocated for good for all people, no matter their color, age, or financial situation. She was one of the hardest workers I've ever known. She was a wonderful mother and wife. She was a wonderful example for me. I will always remember her making sure each family at potluck dinners had plenty of leftovers for the next day so nothing would be wasted. I will miss Mrs. McBride very much but will try to honor her by following her grateful example. Sincerely, Sherry Vinson, MD

“ My name is Charles Dorsey and I worked with Mrs. McBride almost 10yrs ago at Burrus Elementary. She was the librarian and a good one she was. I can remember her taking students to "Name that book" competitions and coming back with awards every time. I would visit with her often being that I was a young man seeking knowledge, I leaned on her for sound advice. She was always to the point in conversation and professional at all times. She was serious about her time. She had a passion for books and it showed in her work. Her push toward getting kids to develop an appreciation for books was admired and will truly be missed. May she find rest well beyond the river.
