“ My favorite memory of Marion DeClues, my cousin was when he was about 7(seven) or 8 (eight) years old and had just gotten baptized at Evening Star Baptist Church by Rev. Johnson. Uncle Clarence, his favorite Uncle, asked if he had something he wanted to share with the church now that he was saved and baptized. Marion said yes. We all waited and suddenly he started to sing this song: "I feel good" the James Brown song and he started to slide across the floor like James Brown. Our Uncle Clarence, one of the deacons, said well, he meant he feels good. You gotta love him!

“ My condolences to the DeClues family. Marion was a joyful person who loved life and his family. The memory I have to share is when, my wife Sondria (Smack) as he referred to her and I took him to New Orleans for his mother's funeral. I believe that was the first time we ever talked for that length of time. We talked about a lot a different things. Marion was an intellectual person. When Marion would call his sister Sondria and talk to her, he never got off the phone without saying he loved us. Brother-in-law, you will be dearly missed. From Benjamin Sampson Jr.
